Grape & Origin

Chardonnay is an internationally known grape — not one of the rare, indigenous varieties Pivotal Wines is otherwise known for. This bottle is grown in the limestone hills of the Kleine Karpaten, northeast of Bratislava, and made without oak.

Tasting Notes

Honey and citrus on the nose, a nutty savoury edge, a long clean finish. Medium body, fine acidity, savoury length. Serve at 10–12°C in a standard white glass: cool, not cold, so the honey and citrus can open.

Why It's Different

Chardonnay's reputation problem was never the grape: it was oak doing the talking. This bottle removes it. What's left is cool-climate, mineral, closer to northern France than to the tropical, oak-driven styles most Dutch drinkers grew up on.

Food Pairing

Roast chicken, mild hard cheeses, creamy pasta.
