Grape & Origin

Pálava is a crossing of Gewürztraminer and Müller-Thurgau, bred in Moravia in 1953. The grape is grown almost exclusively in Slovak and Czech vineyards.

Tasting Notes

Tropical fruit, rose petals, honey and warm spice on the nose. Lush and aromatic, with a long, spiced finish. Serve well chilled, around 8°C, in a white glass with enough bowl to let the aromatics develop.

Why It's Different

Most aromatic whites are either delicate and forgettable, or intense to the point of one-dimensional. Pálava manages the middle ground: real perfume and spice on the nose, with enough structure on the palate to stay interesting over a full glass.

Food Pairing

Veal, goat cheese and aromatic vegetable dishes.
