Grape & Origin

Pesecká Leanka is simply the Slovak name for Fetească Regală, a grape variety first identified in 1920s Transylvania. Under its Romanian name, it's a well-established grape in Romania, but it rarely travels this far west.

Tasting Notes

Soft apricot, lavender and honeysuckle on the nose, with clean, refreshing acidity: a floral, summery character without tipping into sweetness, finishing crisp rather than heavy. Serve chilled at 8–10°C in a standard white glass.

Why It's Different

You won't find Pesecká Leanka on many Dutch wine lists. That makes it one of the more interesting ways to actually taste what's distinct about Slovak wine.

Food Pairing

A natural match for Thai, Indonesian and Surinamese cuisine: think rijsttafel, curry, or Southeast Asian takeaway.
